TO THE REFERENCE

The person named here has applied to a SEA Semester® program. This is a rigorous academic program structured to develop a comprehensive understanding of our oceans; it is designed to be a regular part of the general undergraduate education of college students.

The first half of the program is an intensive study component conducted on our campus in Woods Hole, Massachusetts, during which students engage in an interdisciplinary ocean studies curriculum (specific courses vary by academic semester). The second half of the program combines academic instruction with practical field experience at sea on board one of Sea Education Association's research sailing vessels.

The applicant need not have had experience as a scientist or a sailor, but must be academically prepared to handle a semester of work in 12 weeks, and mature and stable enough to live and work productively in a rigorous theoretical and practical learning situation. Physically, the student will experience occasional discomfort and fatigue; socially s/he must be able to get along with others from varying backgrounds; emotionally s/he must be willing to accept the discipline necessary for the effective operation of a 134' sailing vessel with a group of 35 persons on the open ocean. Your thoughtful responses to the questions below will be most helpful.
